YOUNG IDEAS FOR SUMMERTIME FUN

Fort Mason Center has more than one answer to that parent-haunting question that's forever popping up in the summer: "What'll I do now?" FMC's schedule of children's activities is crammed with a variety of answers guaranteed to fight vacation boredom.

For instance, there are classes all summer for those aged 2-10 at the Children's Art Center. Instruction is given in painting, drawing, printmaking, and sculpture. The Academy of Media and Theatre Arts (AMATA) will be offering workshops in creative drama for ages 8 through 12. Children's Animation Workshops continues through the summer teaching kids to make their own films with cutouts, clay, collage, and film strips with sound effects. Music Time's program shows you and your preschooler how to have fun with music through body awareness, rhythm, and movement. And of course, the Oceanic Society again will be sponsoring Sea Camp, a science education day camp for 8-12 year olds. This popular camp plans daily field trips to explore the marine life of the San Francsico Bay Area. There are four two-week sessions with tuition charge, and full and partial scholarships are available.

During the San Francisco Fair and Exposition to be held at Fort Mason Center June 14-17, many special youth activities are planned. Blue Bear School of Music will present their Spring Workshop Show in the Marina Music Hall, Building D, on June 16 from Noon to 6PM. Performances by Blue Bear's student band playing rock, jazz, blues, and new music plus a demonstration by the harmony and back-ups vocal classes will be featured. AMATA will give three performances of a one-act play, "We Are Tomorrow," June 14, 15, and 17, and will sponsor a Children's Monologue Contest on Saturday, June 16.

Other special events to watch for: July Fourth Weekend, Pickle Family Circus will be entertaining on the Great Meadow and there will also be the Annual Fourth of July Celebrations and Fireworks Display. For Friends of the Fort, there is a fireworks-watching party in the Conference Center. Reservations a must—see article page.

On July 27-29 there will be three days of dance demonstration and competition at the Tahitian Dance Festival, with solo, groups, and junior division performances. A bicycle race, Tour de San France-cisco Rally, winds through the Golden Gate National Recreation Area August 5. And on August 4, Ray Jason, San Francisco's famous street performer, will entertain with juggling, comedy, music and much more, as his gift to the city.

For more specific information or reservations for any of these events or classes, you'll find phone numbers on the calendar pages.

Have a happy summer!

Allan Temko

ALLAN TEMKO EVENING TO BENEFIT THE GREENING OF FORT MASON

Allan Temko, Art Editor and Architecture Critic for the S.F. Chronicle, will deliver the 1984 Frederick Law Olmsted Lecture at Fort Mason's Conference Center at 8PM on Tuesday evening, June 26. Mr. Temko was invited by Harvard University to give the address this year in the prestigious lecture series. Entitled "Homage to Olmsted: 19th Century Principles, 20th Century Problems," the theme illustrates how the innovative concept of park and open space design as introduced by Olmsted in the 19th century is even more meaningful today in solving certain serious environmental problems. It is interesting to note that Olmsted's influence is very strong locally in the master plan of Golden Gate Park, although he did not do the actual design work.

An active participant in environmental politics for many years, Temko served as advisor to President John F. Kennedy, and to Governor Edmund G. Brown, for whom he organized the Governor's Design Awards Program. He has consulted on several notable projects including the Oakland Museum, the State Plan of Hawaii, campus development at several universities, and after teaching for many years at the University of California at Berkeley, more recently served as Visiting Professor of Art at Stanford University. He has also lectured at Yale, Princeton, MIT, and other campuses here and abroad.

The lecture and slide show features Fort Mason center, GGNRA, and other Bay Area locales. Tickets are on sale at the door for $15 ($7.50 Students). The proceeds will go to the Fort Mason Center Landscape Fund. Refreshments will be served.

THE FORT IS HUMMING BECAUSE THE FAIR IS COMING

Fort Mason Center has been a year-round 'fair and exposition' for the past seven years, so it is particularly appropriate that this year the San Francisco Fair and Exposition has chosen the Center as its new home. Our fifty resident groups will contribute a high quality and varied program to the Fair, and be showcased in a way not possible before. We welcome this San Francisco and Bay Area event, and happily turn our facilities and energies over to it.

Marc Kasky
Executive Director
Fort Mason Center

The creative energy which surges through Fort Mason Center at even the calmest of times is now reaching the high water mark as the San Francisco Fair and Exposition draws near. Fort Mason Center's resident groups are busily stitching costumes, painting sets, editing film, fine-tuning, rehearsing and throwing and firing pots in anticipation of the over 100,000 visitors that the Fair will bring during its run from Thursday, June 14 through Sunday, June 17.

A large Fort Mason Center book area is being prepared to serve as the nucleus of an informational network; new visitors can be introduced to the Fort, and old friends who may have previously focused on just a few of the fifty resident groups can broaden their horizons. Schedules of resident-generated Fair events will be available, as well as maps, flyers and other guides to the complex.

People's Theater Coalition will be presenting three special programs daily during the San Francisco Fair: "Mongrel," performed by the Dell'Arte School of Mime and Comedy, 'Charlie' Chin in an encore performance of "ABC," and a special Noh adaptation of the classic drama, "Medea," as presented by Theater of Yugen. (Although "Medea" will continue through July 15, special ticket discounts will be available to all those who attend the Fair.)

Poetry Film Workshop seeks to illuminate our modern lives by sponsoring several events. On Thursday, twenty semi-finalists in the "Give Peace a Chance" poetry contest will read their entries on the contest stage. Saturday will bring the North Beach Performing Poets to the main stage to perform in San Francisco's own special poetic tradition. On Sunday afternoon, poetry films will be screened in the Marina Music Hall, and the finalists from the poetry contest will read their work later that evening.

History buffs and the casually curious will have the opportunity to explore the past by investigating some of the resident groups at Fort Mason Center who are participating in the Fair. The prestigious J. Porter Shaw Library, the National Park Service's eminent library of commercial maritime history, will be giving tours each day of the Fair. The National Park Service also administers the Collections Management Visitors' Gallery which will feature a Gold Rush exhibit. Visiting the last unaltered Liberty Ship is an enjoyable history lesson for the young and a nostalgic treat for the mature; aboard the SS Jeremiah O'Brien, the engines will be running on Saturday and Sunday.

The Academy of Music and Theatre Arts (AMATA), which teaches media and theatre skills to young people, will present three performances of their poignant revue "We Are Tomorrow," which displays children's hopes and fears for their future. AMATA's children's monologue contest will be held on Saturday and is open to all.

Striking a responsive chord in the hearts of music lovers will be Saturday's Blue Bear School of Music Spring Workshop Show, which will feature an eclectic program ranging from blues to 'new' music. Tale Spinners, an intergenerational theater company, will present an hour of music on Saturday on the Pier 3 stage. The Fair will become a fiesta when Los Lupeños, a Mexican dance company presented by the Mexican Museum, perform on Saturday.

Media Alliance may make you a star on Saturday when they roam the Center with a video camera; the videotapes will be played back during their Open House, which will run all day. "Four Minutes to Midnight," a one-act, anti-war drama, will be presented on Thursday and again on Saturday by Performing Arts Workshop (PAW). Magic Theatre's "Skaters" will be performed nightly during the Fair.

Further details about the events described above can be found in the daily listings inside. While you are visiting the Fair, please stop by the Fort Mason Center Information Booth and pick up a copy of the special bulletin we are preparing for the Fair; it will enhance your enjoyment by providing useful information about acitivities you won't want to miss.
